

MAIN TOURING AIMS

The castle Křivoklát

One of the oldest and most significant castles of Czech princes and kings, origin of which dates back to 12th century. The jewel of the gothic architecture has been a stage of famous events of the European history, such as the meeting of the king Wenceslas IV. with delegates of the English king Richard II, who had come to Křivoklát in 1380 to ask for Wenceslas' sister Ann's hand in marriage. In the years 1559 - 1564 archduke Ferdinand Tyrolese's secret wife, charming Filipine Welser - a merchant's daughter from German Augsburg, was staying at Křivoklát. In the late 16th century an English alchemist Edward Kelly was imprisoned in the castle's tower Huderka.

Lány

The chateau in Lány has since 1921 been a summer residence of the Czechoslovak and later Czech presidents. First Czechoslovak president T. G. Masaryk considered Lány for his home and together with his wife Charlotte, son Jan and a daughter Alice is buried at the local cemetery. Personality of the president Masaryk and early times of the independent Czechoslovak state is made clear in the T. G. M. - museum in the neighbourhood of the chateau. President's chateau is not accessible, however adjacent park is open.

The castle Krakovec

The castle Krakovec is a place of pilgrimage of the Czech nation, as it was the last place in Bohemia, where a catholic reformer Jan Hus stayed before his martyr's death in Constance (July 6th, 1415). This day is the national holiday in Bohemia. Gothic Krakovec, built in the years 1381 - 1383, belongs to masterpieces of the Czech castle architecture. There is a wooden bridge going to the castle, which was built in the years 2001 - 2005 using a mediaeval technology and tools.
